It was asked during the meeting what is the sensitivity of the energy bias to the vertical offset of the beams.

It is shown on the next page that in NLC with new optimal BNS this sensitivity is reduced to the level below 100ppm which is about three times better than in TESLA.
Sensitivity of the energy bias to the vertical offset of the beams
Sensitivity of the energy bias to the vertical offset of the beams (zoom in)